The Story of The Sober Junkie

The Sober Junkie is the stage name of Christopher Michael Buechner: singer, songwriter, and recovery advocate with 13 years clean and sober. After overcoming heroin addiction through the 12 Steps and WellBriety, he turned his hard-won story into authentic, uplifting music and motivational speaking that inspire the Indigenous community and audiences far beyond it.

A true multifaceted creative, he has been at his craft as a musician for over a decade while also mentoring many emerging artists. He has written hooks for artists including J-Diggs and Mistah F.A.B., among others. Known on social media for his catchphrase “Hey hold up look listen,” he shares inspiration, motivation, and above all recovery, addiction, and sobriety content that connects with people where they are.

His signature sound blends original storytelling songs with crowd-pleasing covers in Country, Blues, and Funk, delivering feel-good energy that gets audiences dancing, singing, and inspired. Key tracks from his album Sacred Land include “Sour,” “Pin Cushion,” “We Do Recover,” “Welcome Home,” “Take Me Away,” and “Let Me Be.”

He is a music artist with Content Cartel Productions.
